Can you feel it Do you hear that sound
Thunder of the whole world crumbling down around you
Deep in skeptic faces think that you might drown
Gotten high on anxiety and now you want to come down
Someplace to hide someplace to go
Will you ever find it how will you ever know
Don't want to give up hope but it's getting hard to cope
Holding on by a threat to keep from hanging by a rope
It's not like you've got time working on your side
Simple fact is that we are all eventually going to die
One day you're feeling fine the next day you might lose your fu cking mind

So while you've got the time, take a moment out of everyday to shine

Reality's a blur you're in a dismal state
And you're pretty sure your brain is on the take Your desires can't be satiated even the simplest task seems com pliated

A thin line lies between camp beautiful and the circus freaks How can it possibly be some slip so easy From the ranks of the sane to the files of insanity There will be those who will do what they can to smash your dreams

The miracles in your life are closer than they seem Overcoming fears in life a cliched but reoccurring theme You've got to hold together at the seems Searching for the answ ers forever it seems

You'll find the answer it's in your dreams