

Until the Morning

Akron/Family

Don't bother looking for a chair
Just throw your coat down anywhere
I'm sorry I'm so poorly dressed
I gave up hoping for a guest

Woh Woohh

You say you got a weight to bare
A cross you carry everywhere
I say I know and it ain't fair
I tell you you can leave that here

Woh Woohh Woh Woohh
Woh Woohh Woh Woohh

I had always wondered how you carried all that grief (Woh Woohh)
I know it wasn't right to saddle you with mine (Woh Woohh)
My life, my identity, I lay them at your feet (Woh Woohh)
And stand here broken in the mirror of your eyes (Woh Woohh)
Until the morning
Until the morning
'till the morning

The old prayers written on your skin
Claim you were meant to live in sin
They're singing mass out in the yard
They heard that you're the one I want
That I want
That I want
That I want

And I'm about to burn alive
You still won't look me in the eye
I'll turn the light out if you want
If you feel safer in the dark

Woh Woohh Woh Woohh
Woh Woohh Woh Woohh

I came to you an orphan, but I'm leaving here a thief (Woh Woohh)
If I can only find the door I'll go tonight (Woh Woohh)
My life, my identity, I lay them at your feet (Woh Woohh)
In just the hope that you'll let me come inside (Woh Woohh)
'till the morning (x8)
