

Everything Changes

Andrew Allen

Like the stars and their place in the sky
Or footprints erased by the tide
Everything changes
Oh it changes

In September the leaves start to fade
And the clearest of blues turns to grey
Everything changes
Oh it changes

But honey, our love will remain
Firm in the fire and the hardest of rain
Oh honey we're anchored in love
It keeps holding on and it never gives up

When everything changes

The things that we once held so dear
Even the deepest of friends disappear
Cause everything changes, oh it changes

Time carves the lines that we wear
Weaving silver in strands of our hair
Everything changes, oh it changes

But honey, our love will remain
Firm in the fire and the hardest of rain
Oh honey we're anchored in love
It keeps holding on and it never gives up

When everything changes
The ground could be shaking
The walls could be breaking
But we won't be, no we won't be
Everything changes
The ground could be shaking
The walls could be breaking
But we won't be, no we won't be

Our love will remain
Our love will remain

Oh honey, our love will remain
Firm in the fire and the hardest of rain
Oh honey we're anchored in love
It keeps holding on and it never gives up
Oh honey, our love will remain
Firm in the fire and the hardest of rain
Oh honey we're anchored in love
It keeps holding on and it never gives up

When everything changes
When everything changes
Our love will remain