Times are changing and you'll soon have the power
The weak before the strong will break down and cower
Decrepit choices made for you and me
Archaic ploys with no future there to see

Selling arms to support the contras Runs the world just like the Costra Nostra Times are changing Rearranging

Senile king Senile king

And when you disagree and rally in protest Who will win this death-defying contest? Tables turning Bridges burning

Senile king Senile king Will destroy

The more I think about it, less sense of it I make They'll never pay for deeds made in aged haste No, instead they'll die high up in ivory towers But just how old will you be in your finest hour? Tides are shifting Sands are sifting