

Are you walking through fire?
You have a friend
Are you stuck in a nightmare?
My friend, you have a light to make it end

Walking through fire
You have a friend
Stuck in a nightmare
There's a light to make it end

You have hope
You have us
We can put it all back together
You have hope
We have trust in you

Don't bury your ability
Don't give up on your strength
Regret makes you a marionette
Holding the strings and not letting you forget

Do not be weary
Find a path through the night
Do not be weary
Your strength will give you sight

All around are thieves, oppression their regime
Look past your reflection in another's direction
You have all you need from your imperfections
You're the silent minority, the compliant authority
Anyone can rip others apart, so reassemble the broken parts

Walking through fire
You have a friend
Stuck in a nightmare
There's a light to make it end

Face tomorrow, and settle your yesterdays
Your future is too bright to burn out
Forget the things they want you to believe
Forget the things they want you to become
On your back are the injured
They'll never determine your outcome

Walking through fire
You have a friend
Stuck in a nightmare
There's a light to make it end
You're the hero who can show us our tragedy is not tragic

We are not alone
You are by our side
Remind us how to fly
