

When the Time Comes

Avalon

For every soul there is a midnight
When it's silent in the room but loud inside
You lie awake what seems like forever
And you wrestle with the big stuff that can not be denied
All of life
Has led you to this moment

When the time comes
And the games are finally over
There's no more pretending
All charades are done
And the time comes
When the soul is finally ready
You know the truth and
This time you don't run
God is waiting there, you'll find
When the time comes

For every soul this is a dawning
When we see there's more life than we believed
Faith is that one road that's left to travel
But it means we have to start to trust what we can't see
Then at last
We chose to take that first step

He'll rush
He'll reach
He'll run
He'll do
Anything to get to you
