Prodigal Son

Bad Religion

Oh can't you feel the nostalgia son I wonder about ya Modernistocrat Horatio Alger Clever never hesitating in the baiting ever waiting For the canticle of manacles abating Do you ever forget - you had a regret and what you only guessed at Might still be waiting? When the prodigal son with a caroming shadow of hate comes to l and at home Well he's a mourning star with a champagne heart at his curtain call And father never understood just how the work gets done

Don't look at me, no I ain't one, no prodigal son Don't look at me, no I ain't one, no prodigal son

When everybody about is read to bout you about controversial values Don't you think you better readdress the level of the cowardice rising to drown you Did you ever connect or come to reject or even inspect That dream that hounds you

When the prodigal son with a caroming shadow of hate comes to land at home Well he's a mourning star with a champagne heart at his curtain call And father never understood just how the work gets done Don't look at me, no I ain't one, no prodigal son Don't look at me, no I ain't one, no prodigal son

When you least expect it he's going to run Like the blood red path of the western sun oh yeah The prodigal son is waiting, waiting for his moment to come

Well hell no, don't look at me Can't you see, I ain't one, no prodigal son Don't look at me, no I ain't one, no prodigal son