

Endless Tears

Beto Vázquez Infinity

The tears invading this world before they settled, arriving to the sea

And the winds that haunt the winter of the frozen, deep forest Stops its course towards the burning fire Leaving our feelings to rest

Shivering with splendor before the future Tell her that the whispers of the sea moist the words worth living for Reflections on the top of life in a dark but hopeful sky Where in the nights silence our souls will meet and soften the endless tears

A tear and a smile
seducing a man Her sacrifice is made of neverending tears

Still trapped in pale desires that touch the root of the heart Sparkles rise in the air diluting the heat of the flame