

Water

Bishop Briggs

Funny how a blessing feels just like a curse
Bad love hurts, but somehow good love hurts me worse
'Cause lately I'm mistaking honey for the bees
Having trouble sleeping with you next to me

I sink in you like water
Pray you won't pull me under
One look and I die
Heaven in your eyes
Held hard in the white light
I dive in you like water
I sink like a stone

Stone in your water
Stone in your water

Tell the truth, you know you can not keep me safe
There's more pain in love than we can find in hate
Lately I've been keeping honey from the bees
So if you ever leave, at least it's bittersweet

I sink in you like water
Pray you won't pull me under
One look and I die
Heaven in your eyes
Held hard in the white light
I dive in you like water
I sink like a stone

Stone in your water
Stone in your water
Stone in your water
Stone in your water

Be gentle with me
Have patience with me, Oh
'Cause I've been in the corner of my mind that tells me
I'm not good enough for anybody like you
Help me out, you know I need you like water

Stone in your water
Stone in your water
Stone in your water
Stone in your water
