A Dark Passage

Blind Guardian

I feel cold
Facing the darkness
The light's gone away
Deep in his castle he said
All land'll be mine
There's one thing for sure
The triumph of shadow is near Deep in his castle they sang
We shall not rest
Until all will be thyne

All land is mine
You can be sure
Don't dare me
the mighty one screamed

Smashed down the light I will not rest till I'm king Valinor's empty now allied the elves and men they shall be damned

Rise of Fall a dark tale ends

Just wondering how in the darkness they found their way to the right place children of the sun second kindred we call their race treat them kindly born in the east (are the) nightfearer they moved westwards towards the sunshine (they are) morning breath like short's their life (like) dawn passes by when the day comes the field was lost (and) hope had passed away the sun went down beyond the sea dark was the hour but day shall come again

Smashed down the light
I will not rest till I'm king
Valinor's empty now
allied the elves and men
they shall be damned

Clean my wounds wash away all fear let courage be mine noone hears me crying

No song no tale which contains all the grief (but) renowned the deeds and the victims of defeat

Sit down on your chair and look out for your kin with my eyes you'll see and with my ears you'll hear you troubled my day and you've questioned my strength (but) don't mess with the master of fate

Smashed down the light
I will not rest till I'm king
Valinor's empty now
allied the elves and men
they shall be damned

I smashed down the light and dared Valinor I smashed down the light revenge will be mine

Slowly marching on still we're marching on
