

Without Your Love

Bobby Caldwell

Love, if you don't know by now
What's in my heart
If you're in doubt
Let me straighten you out

If you were to leave
What would I do
In a world without you

Don't walk away if all you need to hear
Is a pledge of my devotion
Let me make it clear

*Without your love
What would become of me
I would be half a man
That's the cold reality
If the reason was gone
To wake up and carry on
I'd rather die
Than live without your love

You can believe when I say
That there's no one else
Our love is strong
So don't think something's wrong

Just rest assured
I need you more
Than ever before

So if you think
That I wouldn't agonize
At the thought of you leaving
Let me open your eyes

Without your love
What would become of me
I would be half a man
On the edge of sanity
And that's too great a cost
'Cause each day I'd feel the loss
I'd rather die
Than live without your love

So if you think
That I wouldn't agonize
At the thought of you leaving
Let me open your eyes

Repeat *
