

Because

Boyzone

I don't question how the world works
When it's working out for me
I'm in love with someone beautiful
So wonderful, you won't believe

Don't ask me when our worlds collided
Roll the dice and see
I know what I believe

Oh, I love just because
You're mine just because
I feel just because
It's real just because
It hurts just because
It works just because
When I hear anybody ask me why it does
I say 'just because'

I found my love beside a southern birth
She found a love beside of me
On summer days she wears a sundress
Never looking better
I'm hitting way out of my league

When I fell for her
Oh, I tried to hide it, couldn't fight it
Now I know that she believes

Oh, I love just because
You're mine just because
I feel just because
It's real just because
It hurts just because
It works just because
When I hear anybody ask me why it does
I say 'just because'

Because she loves, because she smiles
Her sense of humour running wild
Because she makes me dream about
When she's walking down the aisle
Because she hurts, because she cries
Because she needs me in the night
So if you ask me why

I say 'just because'
She's mine just because
I feel just because
It's real just because
It hurts just because
It works just because
And when I hear anybody ask me why it does

I say just because

It hurts just because
I say 'just because'
