Broken Bells

So you showed me around your town To hell again and back Our love, it serves to alienate All the friends you depend on

I know it might seem odd Because you're not the only one I remember myself as a lonely child So I was, and you've got me wrong You've got me wrong

(Ground your sense of worth To the spark of morning light And all those searching eyes Could scold your tender mind)

Remember what they say There's no shortcut to a dream It's all blood and sweat And life is what you manage in between

But what you don't know Is you're too young and eager to love Seething eyes So you're about to get into The ditch that you opened up

(Ground your sense of worth To the spark of morning light And all those searching eyes Could scold your tender mind)

See the stars align And leave you behind You want it so, and I I come by light of an autumn moon

Sister you know enough But for now just let it go Don't run, don't rush Just flow

Through the give and take you've had to learn How to cross the coals and not get burned But you're really just a little girl Playing in the park til the sun goes down

Sometime you want to rise One did it's our desire No doubt you think you braided your own hair So you're all grown up

Should you want to cross the line Which way do you want to fly? Pretend that love could help you find your way But you got me wrong Tišteno z pisnicky akordy cz Yean you got me wrong Sponzo
