County Line

Cass McCombs

On my way to you, old county Hoping nothing's changed That your pain is never-ending That is, it's still the same County Line I left so far behind

You never even tried to love me What did I have to do to make you want me? I feel so blind, I can't make out the passing road signs All that you would have me do is cross that County Line

Now you know I'm coming, old county To see construction sites And your new homes never-ending I think I can see the lights County Line County Line I can smell the columbine

You never even tried to love me What did I have to do to make you want me? I feel so blind, I can't make out the passing road signs All that you would have me do is cross that County Line
