

Water Breaks Stone

Charlotte Martin

Out of the stratosphere
Armed with a medicated dream of what will never be
Love can be poisonous
Uncertain spinning in the air
Yet hold the weight of rome

As the fire hates the snow
Can you please stay, please go
As the water breaks the stone
You start to break me slow
Slowly down
My love I've got no power

In pictures of our youth
I threw myself into your night
Into your parallel truths
Could never get away
I'd rather sit collecting dust
Too brave too dangerous

As the fire hates the snow
Can you please stay, please go
As the water breaks the stone
You start to break me slow
Slowly down
My love I've got no power

And on and on it goes and on and on I try
And on and on it goes and on and on I try
And let my heaviest burdens go
I cannot love someone I don't know
Can't let my insecurities show
I wanna pace but you'll never know

As the fire hates the snow
Can you please stay, please go
As the water breaks the stone
You start to break me slow
Slowly down
My love I've got no power
And on and on it goes
And on and on it goes
I set my mind I set myself off my mind
I set my mind I set off my mind
I set my mind I set myself off my mind
I set my mind I set off my mind
