

Morrigan

Children of Bodom

Holding the key to unlock the past
She's painted with my sins, unsurpassed
That'll live on to distend
She's the story that will never end

And I choose her to take, carry my soul
To fly away with me when all's said and done
But now she's gone

I don't believe in faith
The un-acquired love
I refuse to let this cut me deeper
Bound to make her mine

Left to feel so numb
Yesterday can't be undone
But I'll mark these words with a blade
That I'll find you once again
Morrigan!

She's the conduit of my demise
In a bewitching alluring disguise

A six foot drop and a jet black sun
Is all that's left with the things I've done
Because she's gone!

I don't believe in faith
The un-acquired love
I refuse to let this cut me deeper
Bound to make her mine

Yesterday can't be undone
But I'll mark these words with a blade
That I'll find you once again
Morrigan!

I ache and I ache from the fall so steep
I'm awake I'm awake from a twilight sleep
But I refuse to let this cut me deep
I refuse to let this cut me deep

I don't believe in faith
The un-acquired love
I refuse to let this cut me deeper
Bound to make her mine

Yesterday can't be undone
But I'll mark these words with a blade
That I'll find you once again
Morrigan!
