Still Point

Chris Whitley

Right to left, left to right Light to dark and dark to light But who could care from here, my girl At the still point of the moving world The still point of the moving world

One in four and two in three She to him and he to she But who could care from here, my girl At the still point of the moving world

The still point of the moving world Still point of the moving world Still point of the moving world Still point of the moving world

The rain will shine, sun will fall Laws are broken after all But who could care from here my girl At the still point of the moving world

The still point of the moving world Still point of the moving world The still point of the moving world Still point of the moving world

Still point of the moving world Still point of the moving world Still point of the moving world

Still point of the moving world Still point of the moving world