

Invisible

Colin Hay

I wake up to the sound of ringing in my ears
I turned it up too loud for way too many ears
I'm walking streets that I have known for mostly all my life
Moving though the motions in my desperate paradise

I'm invisible, to the naked eye
I'm invincible no more no more
I'm invisible as far as I can see
Invisible yeah invisibility

I open up my eyes and bear witness to the sun
I stretch my bones and check that I can still walk and run
A trip to the grocer's store and then the pharmacy
She's on the telephone as I wait patiently

I'm invisible to her naked eye
I'm invincible no more no more
I'm invisible as far as I can see
Invisible you no longer see me

My footsteps leave no trace through the shifting sand
My reflection disappears as I reach out for your hand
It's not over till the sun falls into the sea
And I am floating in the sky looking down on me

I'm invisible cast me to the wind
I'm invincible no more no more
I'm invisible as far as I can see
Invisible now I can be free
