Phosphor

Colony 5

Whirlwinds of beauty tormenting the heart Less than light, more than dark Chaos is tearing their lives apart Less than something, more than nothing

Fake smiles are burning like phosphor Modern men in their modern corps Too much power to remain sane Too much adrenaline to feel the pain

Figurines dance at the horizon
Puppets that drink acid and breathe ozone
Pieces when Gods are playing chess
Embodied lifelessness

Life and death at their disposal Live or die, roll the dice Too many decisions not enough facts A conscience is a cheap sacrifice