

I Love You More In Memory

Conway Twitty

Just outside my window there's a sound that I can't stand
The cold night rain is falling and the crying lonesome wind
It's telling me you're gone and he's with you tonight
I love you more in memory than he can holding you tight

There were times when you were happy but just for a while
Then a hunger for his love came and took away your smile
While you're in his arms you'll be in my dreams tonight
I love you more in memory than he can holding you tight

You know I loved you and I know how hard you'd try
But there's a part of you I never could satisfy
So I'm losing your sweet love a little more each night
I love you more in memory than he can holding you tight

I love you more in memory than he can holding you tight
