When she's sad the world is lonely Silver clouds are crying onlyFor the pain she feelsSo deep insi de

The love she thought would save herHas somehow now enslaved her To a dream she thought she wanted

To come true

Spread your wings you can fly

But the dove is never freeIn painted skies that shade the color Of your dream

Only nightmares are realConfusion conceals the only reasonFor the feelings you can't hide

When she smiles the world it shines
But the silver clouds are only there
To hide the distant storm
That's coming soon
The love she let surround herHas become the w

The love she let surround her Has become the waves that drown he  $\ensuremath{\mathtt{r}}$

In the sea of everchangingWarmth and cold

Spread your wings you can fly
But the dove is never freeIn painted skies that shade the color
Of your dream

Only nightmares are real Confusion conceals the only reason For  ${\tt t}$  he feelings you can't hide

You can fly

Spread your wings you can flyBut the dove is never freeIn paint ed skies that shade the colorOf your dream

When the nightmares ensue
All that you can do is paint your sky
Another brighter shade of blue
Spread your wings you can glide
Above the violent storm
That plague your life
You paint the picture blue or grey

Fly away