

Blind at Heart

Dark Tranquillity

I tell you here, of all the trust and knowledge broken
What never came, will never be the same
I tell you this - I tell you what
It has been plotted, all the exits sealed
A poison's in our lungs now

Probes of infiltrators, infiltrate me
It's in this hour we forget ourselves
Within the fire that consumes itself

No need for your defenses, my outer wall will hold
Take your stained pride, given it
Invaders and corruptors, inflame me

It's in this hour we forget ourselves, but never again
Within the fire that consumes itself

Once you bring over, the flame of fire
These broken spirits, blind at heart

Bite down hard on your frustration
The siege that can be broken, the dormant flame of fear
I tell you this, I tell you what
So close without connection, locked inside the sphere
I take the blame upon me, and scream at what I see
I'm blind at heart, so blind at heart

It's in this hour we forget ourselves, but never again
Within the fire that consumes itself
