Searching for higher meaning
I stumble to a fall
Laid you back and forth between the innocence
And the frail days that started on
And the beginning was never this frightening
And nobody warned you of that
And you never thought something this beautiful
Could send you deeper into the abyss

So you're pushing the needle again Hoping that when you do Somebody's waiting for you Rusted and old Your feelings have numbed When you find nobody there

Pushing farther and farther
You need someone
You need anyone
To show you yourself from deeper within
And if only someone could forgive you
For all that's been done and said
But maybe it's too late to change
And nobody cares anymore

So you're pushing the needle again Hoping that when you do Somebody's waiting for you Rusted and old Your feelings have numbed When you find nobody there

You'll find out that nobody cares anymore You'll find you'll have to save yourself

So you're pushing the needle again Hoping that when you do Somebody's waiting for you Rusted and old Your feelings have numbed When you find nobody there

Nobody's there