Call of the Road

Doc Watson

When I was a boy, I had to know, what I would find just over th e hill And while still a lad, I had to go, and so you see I'm rambling still life's golden cup, for me was filled, with happiness, and measur es untold, but i left the one, who cared for me, a treasure's worth, so mu ch more than gold.

young men that roam, take heed today, the call of the road, can be so unkind, it will lead you on ,like a fickle kiss, and a wasted life ,is all you'll ever find.
