Dawn Over a New World

DragonForce

In the darkness of the night in the shadows of the dawn It's turning black no looking back the sands of time are sewn When the day will slowly end and the sun has turn to grey Will we feel the power of freedom with the dawn of a new day?

Over mountains payed with gold and through the valleys of the slain Our quest will lead us onwards to the journey of the brave When the time has come to stand for the power we believe We will ring the sound of victory for one and all to see

Sometimes in your darkest dreams you will feel the haunting pain Silent tears of your hidden fears come to haunt you once again Fight on for the memories of the everlasting dreams Their pain in the silent lands on wings of glory free We can go on forever with the darkness so far away And the warriors who live forever fight on to the end

Across the highest mountains and through the endless seas Our journey ever onwards fight until we all be free Through the darkness shining the neverending light On through the days of glory rise towards the fight

And one day we will find a way towards this distant golden age The cries of war will sound the day We stand before the dawn of a new world

On through the raging thunder across the seven seas Cold winter skies are falling on the battles we have seen

We can go on forever with the darkness so far away And the warriors who live forever fight on to the end

Across the highest mountains and through the endless seas Our journey ever onwards fight until the end

Across the highest mountains and through the endless seas Our journey ever onwards fight until we all be free Through the darkness shining the neverending light On through the days of glory rise towards the fight

And one day we will find a way towards this distant golden age The cries of war will sound the day We stand before the dawn of a new world

We stand before the dawn of a new world