Dropkick Murphys

Come all you gallant heroes, And along with me combined I'll sing a song, it won't take long, Of the Fighting Sixty Nin th

They're a band of men brave, stout and bold, From Ireland they came

And they have a leader to the fold, And Cocoran was his name

It was in the month of April, When the boys they sailed away And they made a sight so glorious, As they marched along Broadway

They marched right down Broadway, me boys, Until they reached the shore

And from there they went to Washington, And straight unto the w ar

So we gave them a hearty cheer, me boys, It was greeted with a smile

Singing here's to the boys who feared no noise, We're the Fight ing Sixty Ninth

And when the war is said and done, May heaven spare our lives For its only then we can return, To our loved ones and our wive s

We'll take them in our arms, me boys, For a long night and a day

And we'll hope that war will come no more, To sweet America

So farewell unto you dear New York, Will I e'er see you once mo re

For it fills my heart with sorrow, To leave your sylvan shore But the country now it is calling us, And we must hasten fore So here's to the stars and stripes, me boys, And to Ireland's lovely shore

And here's to Murphy and Devine, Of honour and renown Who did escort our heroes, Unto the battle ground And said unto our colonel, We must fight hand to hand Until we plant the stars and stripes, Way down in Dixieland
