And let there be life One space, a universe. Our world, born like a blind child One confined habitat. And asks the same questions that we ask. And asks the same questions that we ask. And let there be life One soul, one universe. Our world, born like a blind child One confined habitat And asks the same questions that we ask And asks the same questions that we ask. And in this frozen landscape, And in this frozen landscape, I need you. I collect the tears Fallen from even the hardest of eyes... I just can't realise the pain and the lies It's all inside...
