

Fragile

Every Little Thing

It's always the simple, silly things that hurt me
This stilted conversation is so pointless

Words are too clumsy, they just get in the way
It hurts that can't tell you how much I love you

I'm not used to saying "I love you"
But I can say it now, for you
As long as you're there by my side, smiling
I don't need anything else
Everything began when I met you
There are days when we hurt each other
But that "I want to be with you" feeling
Connects us to the future we still can't see

I did everything I could to restore peace
I couldn't manage a smile but I faked one anyway

Every night I can't see you, I'm attacked by loneliness
Because I love you, it makes me nervous, it's a sad love

When I said "I'll look after you" that time
I said it without hesitation, without lying
But I want to hang onto this love I've chosen to believe in
So that it doesn't fall apart

I'm truly, truly happy
To love you so, so much
Even if, for example, we give up at some point later
I'm never going to let you of your hand
Everything began when I met you
There are days when we hurt each other
But that "I want to be with you" feeling
Connects us to the future we still can't see