

Awake

Finch

One devotion, to an empty moment
Can you stay tonight?
Silence broken, with words unspoken
Now she's on her knees

No more feeling so useless
"Can I beg for one more?" she said
Taking with arms wide open
Longing for sleep again

The air is clearing, again we're breathing
Water turns to wine
The day is tired, the night's inside her
Now she is alive

No more feeling so useless
"Can I beg for one more?" she said
Taking with arms wide open
Longing for sleep again

But now I'm awake
But now I'm awake
But now I'm awake

Keep breathing till you feel something
Take my breath away

Keep breathing till you feel something
Take my breath away
Keep breathing till you feel something
Take my breath away

Keep breathing till you feel something
Take my breath away
Keep breathing, keep breathing
Take my breath away

Feeling so useless
"Can I beg for one more?" she said
Taking with arms wide open
Longing for sleep again

But now I'm awake
But now I'm awake
And now I'm awake
And now I'm awake