Thought I could fake this thing alright
Thought it could somehow get me by Watching the doctors as they slide
Needles into my eye

Thought I could finally get around Laughable symptoms keep me down Faces I see all keep me blind And now they're redemption's mine

Now that I can't exchange actions for words Now that I found these inside fears the worst Now that I know there's no place left to hide Can I become all I thought I might

As the leaders who follow the path of whoever was standing roun d them

Call to say what I'm missing and into a detail they always go Don't believe them but offer condolences under the circumstance  ${\sf s}$

All too often I'm missing the spirit to fit in so call me out

Thought I could soundly sleep tonight Positive clear and breathing right Panic attacks, panic attacks me now Seems like a fair redemption
