

Love Isn't All

Firefall

Someday you can tell me that I've been all wrong
Maybe someday I could care less
All the times you'll ask me if my love's still strong
After you've gone, well, I guess the answer's yes.

Sometimes I can feel it even stronger than before
And every now and then it slips away
It's possible to find it, it's there nothin' more
It's never very far away and it's in my way.

Did you ever get the feelin' that your heart had been sold
To somebody without any love
All that you believe in and the things you've been told Suddenly there's more to think of.

If love isn't all that you're after there's trouble ahead in the end
If what's in the way of your laughter is every other way that you've been Well, you've got to tear it all out, look for the light
And then give it a way to get in, baby, if love isn't all that you're after, well then.

Someday you can tell me that I've been all wrong
Maybe someday I could care less
All the times you'll ask me if my love's still strong
After you've gone, well, I guess the answer's yes.