

It's Not Over

Five Times August

Tell me every story of the heart
Don't disappoint, you know just where to start
So many times the song that's sung
You know it goes somewhere where you belong
You might feel the complication
And disappoint with aggravation
But settle down, there's always home
You can never be somewhere where you're alone

So take a deep breath and let it go
It's about time that you should know
There's no point in hanging on

She is flying out that door
He is dying for some more
And they're calling out to you
Did you ever think love could make it through?
The things you do come around
So it's not over now

So you might fall and never stand
Or you could fly and never land
And you might feel your soul is broken
If you leave it unspoken you won't understand

So take a deep breath and turn around
There's a brighter side if you're turned down
So there's no point in hanging on

She is flying out that door
He is dying for some more
And they're calling out to you
Did you ever think love could make it through?
The things you do come around
So it's not over now

She is flying out that door
He is dying for some more
And they're calling out to you
Did you ever think love could make it through?
The things you do come around
So it's not over now
