

Declaration (The Marble Halls V.)

Forgotten Silence

Welcome, you esteemed ones, at this meeting
At this time and in our situation, Which can just hardly be excused There are plenty of us here and I appreciate it Because only few of us know the word "courage" today

In these marble halls
A new idea will be born
The light of the higher principle and human reason will shine on us Let's raise our fingers with goblets Let's call glory to us
Let's light the candles
Let's set fires and conflagrations

Certainly more of us feel the sour taste on the palate You slip with your tongue and gripe with palms Raise the chimera of obscurantism above your heads festively And break it in the half Phantoms of the past do not exist

Our manifesto is the new glare in the sky Let's declare war on heresies grinning in corners
We are the parts of the universe, but our uniqueness,
Our individuality even loosens tongues of the infirm

Let's stand up in rows of long parallels Let's adjust the uniforms taste the force
In our situation in this situation Let's embrace the world the earth is small

Attaboy, full of strength Always in our direction!!
Always up the stream!!
