Something There

Frown

Don't let yourself live Where time stands still Where everything has lost It's sense somewhere on On the brink of despair The days remained the same And i found the need To live fight with hategame Living between the start And the end So my anger Disappeared there I found myself In the ultimate lies I was searching For illusion Of life here I wanted to change Something inside of me Like a blind man's power Bound by his stick Living a hole helpless one It seemed i wanted to kill the man Forced to live without hate and love