The Elusive Light

We have gathered to honour those Who so early passed out of time Flock together to preserve some warmth Last children of mankind

So many have died for a cause A cause without reason So few dared to take a stand Against the prevailing treason

What science gave Science did take back All religions enslave We walk in our own tracks

We are killing the sun To prove that there is none

We have gathered for a last farewell To the essence of life itself Sing together on this final verse Last children of the universe

They all suffered pain so that our time would gain The knowledge and wisdom to avoid it But we had to know for ourselves how it goes Impatiently causing our own ending

The said don't touch, but we had to learn How it feels like to burn It was shining so bright, the ultimate light It blinded us all into darkness
