

Hurricane

Johnny Hallyday

They should have named a hurricane after you
With the trouble you cause and damage you do
You never look back on the runs that remains
Like a hurricane

I never should have opened up my window
The night I saw the lightning in you eyes
I never should have let you touch me with your finger
Cause you cut a path of destruction blowin' through my life...
I ain't lyin'

I left the warm and tender arms that loved me
I left the safety of my home and family
I don't see the bitter tears on the horizon
I was all caught up in the power of your love rainin' down on me
Oh! Listen baby

Oh! And you blow in and out of my life, yes you do
I try to lock you out baby
But you keep on setting my little red house on fire

Somebody tell me why I never learn from my mistakes
Cause here I am standin' alone in the cold
Looking and the mess of my heart you've made
