

You Never Told Me

Happy Rhodes

There were those nights, there were those long nights
When we would test our views, air out our lies and truths

My favorite pursuit, was to find the fairness of it all But you had a different plan, you're such a different man than the one I knew

You never told me you were weak
I might've known what to do
But now this heart's in disrepair
And it's too late to see it through
It's too late for me and you

I thought you would see that I was as willing as they come
All that I am was yours to see, you were so safe with me
You were disguised as someone who could say it as it was Now I'm looking through your mask, and I don't have to ask where your honor is

You never told me you were weak
I might've known what to do
But now this heart's in disrepair
And it's too late to see it through
It's too late for me and you

You never told me you were weak
I might've known what to do
But now this heart's in disrepair
And it's too late to see it through
It's too late for me and you
