

You'll Never Be So Wrong

Hot Chocolate

Just two lovers in the city cafe
Someone's leaving, the waiter says "Hey, won't you wait"
Running nowhere, she hides in her room
What he told her had to get out and soon
It's just a bad affair you've had
No need to cry, don't take it bad

You'll soon be glad when you're far apart
You'll never be so wrong, not for a long time
You'll never be so wrong, not for a long time
'Cause I'm never gonna find that feeling again
I'm never gonna find that feeling again

Now she's breaking but what can she do
Somewhere out there a car disappears out of view
Fumbles somewhere for stale cigarettes
Looks for numbers, the ones she could dial but forgets
No point in you just looking down
No way that you can turn it around
You've got to realise you're free

You'll never be so wrong, not for a long time
You'll never be so wrong, not for a long time
'Cause I'm never gonna find that feeling again
I'm never gonna find that feeling again

No point in you just looking down
No way that you can turn it around
You've got to realise you're free

You'll never be so wrong, not for a long time
You'll never be so wrong, not for a long time
'Cause I'm never gonna find that feeling again
I'm never gonna find that feeling again