

Thank You

Ilse DeLange

Thank you

I never know what's before me but I can see my past another chance to be free opened a door at last all useless conversations words spilled, conclusions drawn I will go on without you I'll try from this day on

I don't need backslash baby will run before you fall too big a confrontation no mirrors in your hall another misconception is that my hop is gone I won't let sorrow linger
I'll try from this day on

reconstruct my heart
loose the broken parts
forget about your memory thank you for leaving
thank you

with no appreciation for all the stories told it's your imagination that's filled the lied you hold beyond the comprehension that I can be this strong refocus my attention
I'll try from this day on

reconstruct my heart
loose the broken parts
forget about your memory
thank you for leaving
thank you