

Somebody Else's Dream

In Strict Confidence

He traveled so far
To treasure
Another scar
She left to strike a new path
On behalf
Of what she called love
To make a new start
To get a new life

He brought his spirit to sin
To begin a trip to share in?
She was unjaded at heart
With her soul seduced by the dark

Like everyone ever did
they've lost their way
They were circling round, running round
They went astray

We're only floating around in a dream
Only craving for senses to feel
Gasping for more as if this would be real

And not somebody else's dream

He laid his heart in her hands
To prevent a long suffering
She bowed her hat towards him
She started to sing
The song of sirens

To make a new start
To give a new life

Like everyone ever did
They've lost control
They were circling round, stumbling down
Admitting their roles

We're only floating around in a dream
Only craving for senses to feel
Gasping for more as if this would be real
And not somebody else's dream!