

Where Were You

Information Society

"Could you make believe that I was your daddy?"

My how times have changed
My how life is strange
Things get re-arranged

Now you call my name
But things are not the same
I'll take all the blame

I just have to ask you...

Where were you when I felt the craving
Where were you when I needed saving
Where were you when the light was dying
Where were you when I felt like crying

I've got to stay away
On my darkest day
You found no words to say

If what you have in store
Is what you gave before
Then I want no more

I just have to ask you...

Where were you when it was still worth sharing
Where were you when it was still worth caring
Where were you when I was torn and bleeding
Where were you when I was still worth needing

Where were you when I felt the craving
Where were you when I needed saving
Where were you when the light was dying
Where were you when I felt like crying

Where were you when I went away
Where were you when I died that day
How can you be both here and there
How can you not be anywhere

Where were you when it was still worth sharing
Where were you when it was still worth caring
Where were you when I was torn and bleeding
Where were you when I was still worth needing

Where were you when I felt the craving
Where were you when I needed saving
Where were you when the light was dying
Where were you when I felt like crying
