

Orphans

Jack's Mannequin

I'm looking for a sign
My spirit's faded
She holds on like a vine
Patterns in traffic
They sound just like my heart racing the dark
In time to catch you
No one should let you
Go wandering off into the night
You're not an orphan.

I keep waiting for my breath
To come back never
So I've take what I have left
Patterns in traffic
The pulse just like my heart racing the dark
In time to catch you
No one should let you
Go wandering off into the night
You're not an orphan.

Right there to catch you
I won't forget you
But now you're wandering to the night
But you're no orphan.

You're not an orphan
I never thought the day would come
(You're not an orphan)
They tell me that you've finally run
(You're not, you're not, you're not an orphan)
I guess you always said you would someday

(You're not an orphan)
I never thought the day would come
(You're not an orphan)
They tell me that you've finally run
(You're not, you're not, you're not an orphan)
I guess they always said you would someday
