

Love Song

Janet Devlin

I heard it on the radio
In all the stories I've been told
In every phrase and every note
But I don't know

I see it in the stranger's eyes
As they share each other's lives
With roses and with lullabies
But I don't know

But I have never written a love song
And no-one knows where they come from
Until they come along
And sometimes, something saves you, or someone
Then you can write them a love song
A truly honest one
And maybe this is one

I got lost and couldn't find
The heart of me that beats inside
So I drew these compass lines
Now I'm alive

I forgot the reasons why
Forgot the way two lovers lie
And Hold each other through the night
Now I'm alive

Cause I have never written a love song
And no-one knows where they come from
Until they come along
And sometimes, something saves you, or someone
Then you can write them a love song
A truly honest one

I hear the choirs and I feel the music
That's why I'm singing for you
I hear the choirs and I feel the music
That's why I'm singing for you
I hear the choirs and I feel the music
That's why I'm singing for you
I hear the choirs and I feel the music
That's why I'm singing for you

But I have never written a love song
And no-one knows where they come from
Until they come along
And sometimes, something saves you, or someone
Then you can write them a love song
A truly honest one
And maybe this is one
