Every leaf on every tree

And every drop of water in the sea

Every grain of weathered sand

That smashes itself onto dry land

Every stone and every petal, everything that's elemental

You are never gone

Calling God, calling out

Folded hands and bended knees
I pray for life's catastrophes
Oh hallelujah, save us all
Rock of ages fire fall
Holy-roller roll away, send salvation, send a saint
I am not alone

Calling God, calling out Calling God, calling out

Every leaf on every tree
And every drop of water in the sea
Every grain of weathered sand
That smashes itself onto dry land
Every stone and every petal, everything that's elemental
Every tear that hits the ground
Everything that's lost and never found
Every hill dreams of a mountain
Every heart a bleeding fountain
Every wish and every prayer
That always seems to disappear

Every leaf on every tree, and every drop of water in the sea Every drop of water in the sea