

Something New

Jason Castro

I'm like a wave that's crashing caught up in the storm
I'm waiting for the wind to carry me ashore

All the battles I have fought that drag me to the ground
Picking up the pieces I can see it now, I see it now

All of the chains falling away
And I'm reaching out for You
The brightest of days calling my name
Starting something new
Letting it go, leaving the past
And never turning back again
Feeling the change, finding the way
Starting something new

And in this perfect moment there's nothing left to fear
I'm safe from all the shadows, I'm never leaving here

All the signs along the way that led me to Your door
I never knew the rescue I was headed for, headed for

All of the chains falling away
And I'm reaching out for You
The brightest of days calling my name
Starting something new
Letting it go, leaving the past
And never turning back again
Feeling the change, finding the way
Starting something new

When I was giving up
You were always coming through
From the moment that I met You
You were something new

All of the chains falling away
Feeling the change, finding the way

All of the chains falling away
And I'm reaching out for You
The brightest of days calling my name
Starting something new
Letting it go, leaving the past
And never turning back again
Feeling the change, finding the way
Starting something new
Starting something new