

Alone Again

Jay-Jay Johanson

How could a love like ours come to an end
We had it all but lost it 'round the bend
There's something that I'll never understand
Why now it seems like hurting's close at hand

But I'm alone again, alone again
Though the years that pass divide us
I am alone again, alone again
Something'll never keep us apart

There's one love left between us that will stay
When memories can slowly fade away
Though feelings changed ever since we met
Our little daughter won't let us forget

But I'm alone again, alone again
Though the years that pass divide us
I am alone again, alone again
Something'll always keep us close

I see her one weekend now and then
I've realized I'm like a long lost friend
She has your eyes, your funny little smile
Her lovely laugh brings you back for a while

But I'm alone again, alone again
Though the years that pass divide us
I am alone again, alone again
Our little daughter keep us close
