

Neverending War

Jeff Scott Soto

I been around this lonely world
And every street is filled with the same tears
Can this be my world?

The weight is more than we can stand
The saviors that we turn to prove our fears
Just don't understand

There's another broken heart asleep tonight (love is not enough anymore)
There's another fire in the streets tonight
In this neverending war

We're down and broken everywhere
This struggle's even taken out the strong
Damaged everywhere

Why must we strain to see the light?
There is no answer, left or right or wrong
Tell me where is the light?

There's another broken heart asleep tonight (love is not enough anymore)
There's another wounded child at reach tonight (don't wanna know about it anymore)
There's another mother crying out tonight (love is not enough anymore)
There's another fire in the streets tonight
In this neverending war

This neverending war

There's another broken heart asleep tonight (love is not enough anymore)
There's another wounded child at reach tonight (don't wanna know about it anymore)
There's another mother crying out tonight (love is not enough anymore)
There's another fire in the streets tonight
In this neverending war