

Cold Enough To Snow

Jennifer Warnes

Where did summer go
How'd I miss the change of season
All at once the wind blows rough
It's cold enough to snow

In the street below
People laugh, they've got no reason
Don't they know
It's cold enough to snow

When we were together
And you were staying
Funny but the weather
Still felt like May in mid December

Now the chill wind blows
Sunny skies are only teasing
You won't show
And it's cold enough to snow

On the radio
There's a man says
It ain't freezing
What's he know
He didn't watch you go

Now the sun can't shine
If it wants to, fine
But it's cold enough to snow
