

Tex-Mex

John Cafferty & the Beaver Brown Band

There's a little town in Texas where the interstate runs on through

Little princess danced for her daddy's charms back in '62
And her mama told her that some day she'd meet her man
Prettiest bride from the Red River to the Rio Grande

Close your eyes now Crystal Blue
Make one wish and all your dreams come true
Wear those yellow roses in your hair
And that lone star of Texas will always shine just for you
It's true, pretty little Crystal Blue

In that little Spanish chapel in the hills down in San Antone
She pledged her heart one sunday mornin' and had a man of her own

Western Union came the day his country called on him to play his part

Now late at night she lies awake, a hero's medal held close to her heart

Close your eyes now Crystal Blue
Make one wish and all your dreams come true
Wear those yellow roses in your hair
And that lone star of Texas will always shine just for you
It's true, pretty little Crystal Blue
And that lone star of Texas will always shine just for you
It's true, pretty little Crystal Blue
