Once when your life was an open door Someone poisoned you blind Can you remember those days without war Now you have left them behind Did you become what you needed to be Have you achieved what you wanted There was a time when your heart spoke free Before the demon was planted - yeah

How can you live
with these chains around you
Building your future on lies
Windows are open with a perfect view
You will see if you try
You can recover the heaven you knew
I saw you fall from the sky
Hiding your rainbow in the black and blue
Too late to regret when you die

Slowly you drown in your ocean of hell
No more ships passing by Far in the distance the wind tries to tell
Of the ghost and the cry
There's no shame in the eyes of the fool
Only greed keeps you yearning
Life a fireball rolling in fuel
There's no end to the burning - no

How can you live
with these chains around you
Building your future on lies
Windows are open with a perfect view
You will see if you try
You can recover the heaven you knew
I saw you fall from the sky
Hiding your rainbow in the black and blue
Too late to regret when you die

Once I could read you like an open book 'Till you closed up inside
Do you remember the love that you took Stole my heart with a lie

Why do we carry these chains full of rust Why are they haunting our minds So many memories of broken trust There's no erase or rewind We must believe and try over again

Brave we will turn in the spindrift of pain Holding the flame 'till we die Yeah - keeping the flame 'till we die
